My husband and I interviewed five architects in New Mexico before choosing Jon and his firm Archaeo Architects. We immediately liked his designs and his use of light and space. And although we interviewed 4 fine architects after him, we came back to Jon as our first choice, because we found his designs uniquely inspiring. We were not disappointed with the house he designed for us, which is spectacular.

The experience of working with Jon and his staff was also an extremely rewarding part of the whole process of building a custom home. Jon listened to our ramblings of what we would like in our home, and made lots of notes and sketches during our first trip to see the site. He even spent 24 hours on the site by himself to understand the light and the views. He helped to refine our ideas and gave very personal service, even to the extent of shopping with us for light fixtures and finalizing the fixtures chosen on his own as we still live in Washington, DC.

It was a great help having Jon oversee the project because we were building from a distance. He or one of his associates would visit the site often to check on what was being done and how it matched up or didn't with the original drawings. We don't know how we could have accomplished building from a distance without this assistance, which proved invaluable, and it seems certain that we would not have ended up with a house we love as much as we do.
